VICTORY KISS—Martha Louise Sander, 5, kisses her daddy soundly at their home in Candia, N. H., after Dr. Sander was found innocent of "mercy murder" charge. Despite his acquittal, Dr. Sander faces trial by his fellow doctors on the New Hampshire State Board of Registration in Medicine to determine what medical penalty, if any, will be imposed on the doctor.

Dr. Sander Confident Board Will Favor Him

CANDIA N. H., March 11—(AP)—Dr. Hermann N. Sander is confident the state board of registration in medicine will permit him to resume practice.

The handsome young doctor, acquitted of murder in the death of a cancer-plagued patient, said last night he felt sure the board will allow him to return to his patients "after calm, cool deliberation."

Dr. Sander made the statement shortly before he and his wife left on "a southern trip." They would not disclose their destination.

A representative of the state board, who talked with the doctor before he left, said the group may not hold a formal hearing on suspension or revocation of Dr. Sander's license for several weeks.

Members of the board will meet at the State House Monday to set the date.

The board is expected to give particular attention to Dr. Sander's court testimony that he inserted, or attempted to insert, an air-filled needle into a vein in the arm of Mrs. Abbie C. Borroto, his patient.

The state charged that the air injection caused Mrs. Borroto's death. Medical testimony was offered by the defense, however, that the vein had collapsed and that an air injection was impossible.

The 31 members of the House of Delegates of the New Hampshire Medical Society will meet in Concord tomorrow to discuss the case.

The organization has no power to suspend or revoke the doctor's license. It can express an opinion or pass resolutions that might influence members of the board of registration.

Hamilton S. Putnam, executive secretary of the Society, said the meeting will be held behind closed doors. The group plans to issue a public statement after the meeting.

While this quiet town began to return to normal, the issue of euthanasia (mercy killing) which attracted world-wide attention at the start of the trial, gathered momentum.

Mrs. Robertson Jones of New York, 69-year-old executive of the Euthanasia Society of America, announced the New Hampshire state legislature would be asked to enact the nation's first "mercy death" law.

She called a mass meeting for next Friday at which the legislation will be discussed.

Riots Flare In Belgium Over Vote Sunday

Referendum Will Decide Whether King Can Return

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 11—(AP)—Fifty demonstrators were injured at Antwerp last night in a violent prelude to tomorrow's advisory referendum on the future of exiled King Leopold III.

Hand-to-hand fighting between Leopoldists and large numbers of his opponents broke out during a fireworks display staged by supporters of the move to bring the King back to the throne he left after surrendering to the German Nazis.

Five hundred policemen were needed to quell the riot.

It was the largest disorder reported so far in connection with the advisory referendum tomorrow, in which some 5,500,000 of the 8,000,000 Belgians are eligible to cast ballots. The polls will be open between 7 a. m. and noon.

Leopold has said he would abdicate in favor of his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin, if he receives less than 55 per cent of the votes. But if he does attain that majority, it will not insure his return.

The referendum is only advisory, to indicate the will of the voting population. Parliament still must decide whether to ask the 48-year-old Leopold to "resume the use of his constitutional powers." Leopold must decide whether to accept any invitation that is forthcoming.

Following Belgium's surrender to the Germans May 28, 1940, the King refused to follow the country's exile government to London. Instead he remained to become a prisoner of the Germans and was deported by them to Germany in 1944.

The liberated country's parliament in 1945 voted he could not return without its permission. Since his own liberation by American forces in 1945, the King has lived in Switzerland, center of a violent controversy at home in which the strongly Catholic Social Christian party has campaigned for his return and Socialists, Communists and Liberals have bitterly fought the proposal.

The King's brother, Prince Charles, has reigned as regent in his absence.

The leader of the Socialist campaign against the King, former Premier Paul-Henri Spaak, has declared that the referendum tomorrow will split Belgium. He has forecast a bitter division between the French speaking Walloons of rural South Belgium, who favor Leopold's return, and the Dutch-speaking Flemish of industrial North Belgium, opponents of his return.

The King's opponents contend he capitulated too hastily before Hitler's troops and he should have accompanied his government abroad. Also an issue in the campaign has been his marriage, while a prisoner of the Germans, to a commoner. His first wife died in an automobile accident in 1935.

Leopold's supporters argue that he surrendered to the Germans only after hope of victory was lost. They contend that he did not collaborate with the conquerors.

'Court Of Last Resort' Saves Convicted Slayer From Chair

COLUMBUS, March 11—(AP)—A convicted slayer sat jubilant in his Ohio penitentiary death row cell today after a dramatic eleventh hour reprieve saved him from the electric chair last night.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche granted Theodore R. McClure, 23, a Cleveland Negro, a 60-day stay of execution at 7:10 p. m., only 50 minutes before McClure's scheduled electrocution.

The governor's last-minute move came only a few hours after he had refused to intervene in McClure's behalf.

McClure owes his lease on life to a group composed of a doctor, a detective, an author and a publisher who call themselves "the court of last resort."

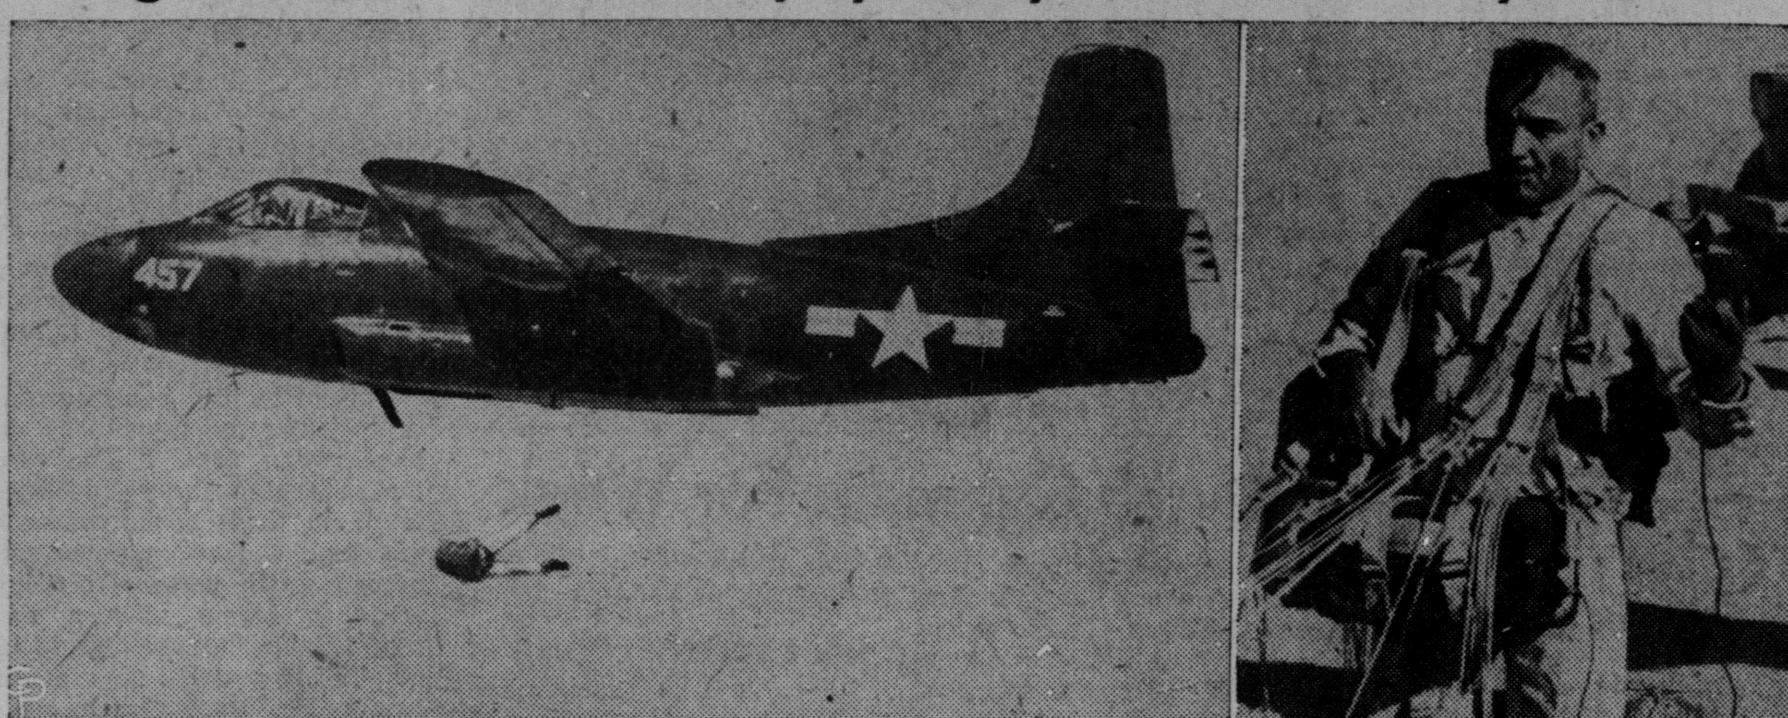

The "court" is strictly unofficial, unpaid and voluntary. It investigates suspected miscarriages of justice.

Its members are Dr. Le Moyne Snyder, former medico-legal advisor to the Michigan state police and author of a murder-detection text; Raymond Schindler, New York private detective; Erle Stanley Gardner, author of many murder-mystery novels; and Harry Steeger, publisher of "Argosy" magazine.

Dr. Snyder said his group had

Midair Crash Kills 2 Pilots

Training Flights End Near Steubenville

STUEBENVILLE, March 11—(AP)—A midair plane collision brought fiery death to two Ohio National Guard pilots last night.

Killed as two F-51 ships crashed in flames while on a training flight were First Lt. William Drazic of Steubenville, a student at Ohio State University, and First Lt. Niel H. Diehl of Columbus.

The two planes, occupied only by the pilots, came down about three miles apart near here. Both bodies were burned badly before they could be removed.

State Highway Patrolman John Kowalczyk said several witnesses reported seeing or hearing the collision in the clear night air.

The planes, along with three others, had taken off from Lockbourne Air Base at Columbus on a routine practice flight. What caused the crash had not been determined today. The other three craft returned safely.

Joe Osz, a farmer, said he was working in his garage when he heard the aircraft.

"I saw the two planes coming, one from the east and the other from the south," he said. "They looked like they were going to come together."

"I turned my back for a minute and then heard a crash and explosion. I saw one come down sputtering and in flames and then saw the other crash fire."

Lt. Diehl, Patrolman Kowalczyk said, apparently tried to bail out of his ship, but did not have time because of the plane's low altitude.

There were reports of flares being dropped. It was believed, however, that these probably were burning parts of the two craft.

Is Our Cupboard Bare?

Extent Of Data Fuchs Gave Russia "Alarming"

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—Dr. Klaus Fuchs, confessed Russian spy, may have stripped the United States' scientific cupboard bare of all but its latest atomic secrets.

Further, it is considered likely among those familiar with the situation that he could have passed on to the Soviets highly "educated guesses," to say the least, about the rate of U. S. A-bomb production and the size of this country's stock-pile.

Both are closely guarded secrets. So is all data connected with development of the potentially more deadly hydrogen bomb. Fuchs was familiar with the theory of the H-bomb, too.

Members of the Senate-Souse atomic energy committee who saw the Fuchs confession for the first time yesterday, took a grave view of the matter. Senator McMahon (D) of Connecticut, committee chairman, declined to say what was in it or answer questions about it.

The confession, passed on by the British, reached the joint committee through the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Atomic Energy Commission. AEC officials met with the committee behind closed doors to go over the document.

It was learned later that some information, including dates and names, had been deleted from the closely-guarded confession before it got to the committee.

Fuchs, a communist and leading British atomic scientist, was convicted on March 1 of betraying British-American atomic secrets to Russia and sentenced to 14 years in prison.

The German-born scientist had been arrested in London February 3, on evidence supplied by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He had worked on the U. S. atomic bomb project from late 1943 until June, 1946.

In Montreal, The Ensign, a Roman Catholic weekly newspaper, said yesterday it has proof that Canada in 1946 informed U. S. and British authorities that Fuchs was involved in the Russian spy network.

The Ensign also added, without giving any source, that the FBI had wanted to investigate Fuchs then but was not permitted to look into atomic espionage until 1947.

(The U. S. atomic program was under the control of the Army until midnight, December 31, 1946, when it passed into the hands of the present five-member civilian Atomic Energy Commission. The FBI took no part in the Manhattan district, the Army's name for the atomic project.)

Congressman Stresses Unified Farm Program
LISBON, March 11—Congressman Wayne L. Hays of St. Claireville urged farmers to unite on a national agricultural program, acceptable to the people, when he spoke to 40 soil conservation farmers in the Methodist church here Friday.

He also discussed the United States' part in world affairs and stressed the importance of halting the advance of Communism. Robert Yoder of the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster and Prof. J. L. Robinson of the Soils department of Ohio State University spoke briefly on topics related to good soil management.

Roads Slippery After Snowfall

3 Persons Injured In Traffic Mishaps

A wet blanket of snow covered the Salem district today, making streets and highways slippery. Three persons were injured in three accidents attributed directly to road conditions.

Two of the accidents involved state highway department trucks whose crews were out cinderling the roads.

Jack Anglemeyer, 31, of Leetonia, a state highway employee, suffered abrasions of the neck and knees when a state truck and a car driven by Herbert A. Walters, 26, of Yorkville collided at the junction of Routes 7 and 14, east of Columbiana, at 7:20 a. m.

Walters received a bruised knee and lacerated head. The truck driver, William J. Lewis, 51, of Leetonia, was not hurt.

No one was injured when a car driven by Herbert Case, 52, of Youngstown, hit the rear of a state highway truck on the Damascus road at 8:15 this morning.

In another accident this morning at 8, Lloyd Pemberton, 39, of R. D. 5, Salem, escaped with a forehead abrasion when his car skidded on an icy stretch of the Albany road, about a mile north of Salem, hit a bank and upset, the state patrol reported.

Snowfall was estimated at two inches.

Toledo Editor Says ECA Aid Justified

COLUMBUS, March 11—(AP)—Marshall Plan spending is justified in the interest of peace, a Toledo newspaper editor just back from an European tour said here yesterday.

Paul A. Schrader, managing editor of The Toledo Blade, spoke at the closing session of the Ohio Newspaper Association's two-day convention.

Schrader said "we are paying dearly for our hours of peace but our efforts are constructive."

The editor voiced satisfaction with Marshall Plan operations and war recovery in Europe, and said democracies in their struggle against communism face total war at fantastic cost or a tenuous peace supported by the American economy.

During the convention the Buckeye Press Association held its annual session and reelected President Ray Palmer of The Barnesville Enterprise and all other officers.

Experts Look For Expression Of Red Aims

Soviet Leader To Close His One-Man Election Campaign

MOSCOW, March 11—(AP)—Prime Minister Joseph Stalin takes the campaign platform tonight to make what most observers expect will be the most important Soviet public announcement of the past four years.

Stalin's speech will climax a campaign for national elections to the Supreme Soviet (parliament) which take place tomorrow. The Prime Minister himself is an unopposed candidate for re-election in Moscow.

Campaign speeches by other top-ranking members of the Soviet Communist party's powerful Politburo have been highlighted by pronouncements of Russia's desire for peace.

Deputy Prime Minister V. M. Molotov, in a major speech in Moscow's Hall of Columns last night, reiterated previous Russian statements that communism and capitalism can live together in "peaceful economic competition."

But Molotov blasted at "blackmailers from the imperialist camp" for trying to scare the Soviet people with a hydrogen bomb which he said "does not exist."

Foreign diplomats studied with extreme interest the speeches of Molotov and other Politburo members. They predicted the Soviet Union would make some overture toward a new effort to settle international problems which now split the world.

Molotov said he believed peace is possible, but that the Soviet Union must be on its guard.

"We firmly believe in the Leninist-Stalinist principle of the peaceful co-existence of two systems and their peaceful economic competition," Molotov said. "But we also know full well that for so long as imperialism exists there exists also the danger of a new war."

"Imperialism and its expansionist plans are inevitable. Therefore, supporters of lasting peace should not be passive, but should wage a more effective struggle for peace and draw masses of people together to oppose the attempts of the imperialists to launch a new war."

Molotov's reference to the hydrogen bomb was the first time it had been mentioned by name here, although other commentators have referred to a "super-bomb."

The Deputy Prime Minister said while the imperialists were engaging in blackmail about the monopoly possession of the atomic bomb, the Soviet people, as is known, did not waste time but mastered the secret of atomic energy and the atomic weapon.

Molotov charged the Western powers were trying to intervene in the internal affairs of Eastern European countries. As an example, he cited the break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Bulgaria.

He mentioned the "triumph of the national liberation movement in China" as the most important result of the defeat of Japan.

The newly signed alliance between China and Russia, he said, transforms "Sino-Soviet friendship into a great and mighty force in the strengthening of the cause of peace throughout the world, the like of which has never been known in the history of the world."

Fire Causes Damage In Employment Office

Flooring and plumbing in the Ohio State Employment Service room on E. State st. were damaged by fire at 3:13 p. m. Friday. The blaze burned through the floor and melted the ground pipe, leading to a rest room, Chief Vincent, Malloy said. He could give no cause for the fire.

The fire department was called to the home of John Panuska at 648 S. Union ave. at 7:15 a. m. today when a smoke pipe fell off the furnace.

Churches Will Cooperate In National Project Sunday

Thousands of churches throughout America will have part in the "One Great Hour of Sharing" project at 11 a. m. Sunday, which is a concerted appeal for the needs of the World.

Members are asked to join with fellow Christians in an act of sharing by giving a gift through their own church to help meet the sufferings of the world through Christian channels. Nineteen denominational bodies in the nation are participating.

The Salem Ministerial Association is sponsoring the project in local churches.

New Minister Coming

Rev. Richard C. Swogger, new pastor of the Methodist church, and his family are expected to arrive here next week from Des Moines, Ia. He will be speaker for the Sunday, March 19, service.

Harold A. Zealley, superintendent of Salem City Hospital, will preach at the morning service tomorrow. His theme will be "An Active Agent."

Confident Living

How To Find Real Happiness

THIS WEEKEND marks an important occasion for me. It is the publication date of my new book, "The Art of Real Happiness," written in collaboration with Dr. Smiley Blanton, the psychiatrist who has been my associate at our religio-psychiatric clinic at the Marble Collegiate Church in New York ever since that clinic was established.

The story of how that clinic came to be is an interesting one. I was called to the Marble Church during the darkest days of the depression. Some men were jumping out of Wall Street office windows, others were peddling apples on the city streets. Many members of my new congregation had problems both immediate and difficult. When they brought these problems to me, I gave them what help I could, but I soon found that my ministerial training had not properly equipped me to give adequate help to those who came to me in such desperate need.

I began to read books, a great many books, on psychology and psychiatry. But I discovered that, although the knowledge I found in those books convinced me that a new approach was needed to the personal difficulties that harass modern man, reading was not enough to enable me to put that approach into practice. So I went to one of New York's medical societies and asked to be introduced to a practicing psychiatrist who also believed in the therapy of religious faith.

This was more than ten years ago and I was told that men who thought that the discoveries of psychiatric science could be fused with the eternal truths of the Bible were few indeed. Finally, however, I was introduced to one such man, who had made a practice of urging his patients to go to their church or synagogue as part of the healing process. That man was Dr. Blanton, and, shortly after our first meeting, we established our clinic at my church.

ONE OF THE FIRST persons with whom we worked together was the second son of a very intelligent family. Their first son was the family's pride; he was the life of every party; he took all honors and succeeded in everything. Although, as a result, the first son was the center of his parents' affection, the second son had always been filial, loving, brotherly and kind. But, as he grew older, he began to become antagonistic towards everyone outside the family circle. He began to express ideas which shocked his parents. And, finally, he began to show evidence of extreme nervousness and developed a serious case of insomnia. His parents brought him to us.

It did not take long for the psychiatrist to discover that he had stored up inside him a deep-seated resentment and jealousy of his older brother, although he would never have admitted this fact to himself. When he eventually poured this out to the doctor in a torrential flood, he became exhausted and was able to fall into the first deep sleep he had known in months.

Then the pastor worked with him and taught him the techniques of forgiveness. He went to his older brother and asked to be forgiven. The tension subsided and his ideas began to fall into a normal pattern. He was able to think objectively rather than peace; how to relax and returned to a more natural way of life.

MOST OF the people who have come to us since then are, just as this boy was, ordinary people whose problems are the everyday problems of everyday living. When we began to gather material for "The Art of Real Happiness," we analyzed the nature of the problems they had brought to us and found that there are nine major problems that beset most people today: how to balance the forces of love and hate inside us; how to find lasting inner peace; how to relax and relieve tension; how to heal the illness that arise as a result of the multiple pressures of our time; how to avoid fits of depression and anxiety; how to have a successful marriage; how to cure alcoholism; how to find comfort when bereaved, and how to face the problems of growing older.

There is an answer to each of these problems and to all the minor problems that arise from them. In my column next week I shall attempt to outline the technique Dr. Blanton and I have developed. There are two general steps to remember: first, you must learn to look within yourself deeply and frankly and you must find release in fully understanding the forces that work within you and all of us; second, you must put into active practice the teachings of your religion.

Understanding and using these steps provide a way for you to find real happiness. In the new-old combined techniques of religion and psychiatry, you can restore and renew the faith and confidence and power necessary to confident living.

After Seven Years, An Obit For USS Jarvis

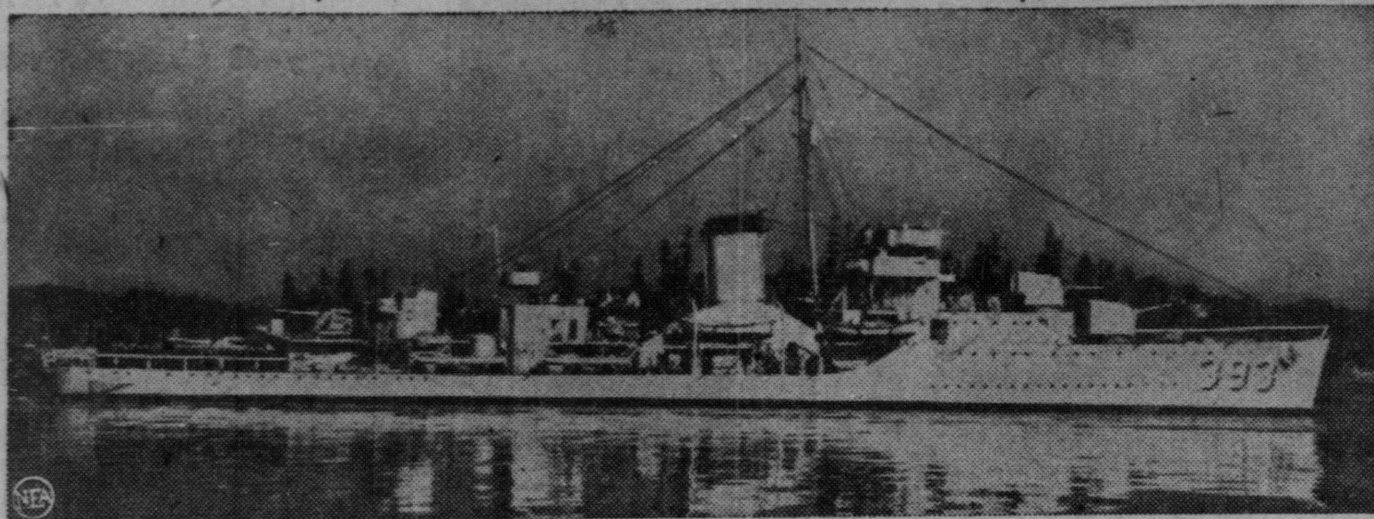

End Of Warship In 1942 Now Told For First Time

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The mysterious disappearance of the only U.S. surface warship unaccounted for at the end of World War II has at last been cleared up on the Navy's records.

After seven years of patient detective work, Navy historians announce they have solved the riddle of the destroyer USS Jarvis, which sailed off into space Aug. 9, 1942, from the Coral Sea southwest of Guadalcanal, following the sea battle of Savo Island.

A Navy flier from the carrier Saratoga was the last friendly person to see the Jarvis, limping along in the pre-dawn haze bound for Australia. Six weeks later a terse Navy communique announced that intensive air and surface searches had failed to reveal any trace of her. Next of kin of the 246 officers and men on board were notified.

Ordinarily, a surface ship going down would have been sighted, would have left flotsam, or there would have been survivors to give an accounting of their ship. The Jarvis' position was well established in a small ocean area which was meticulously scanned by aviators and seamen. Yet she vanished without a trace. Up to now that's been all anybody knew.

The Jarvis was part of the task force assigned to the invasion of Guadalcanal. During the attack she purposely took a Jap torpedo in her side to protect the cruiser Vincennes. Her skipper, 39-year-old Lt. Comdr. William W. Graham, of Palmyra, N. J., refused to abandon ship although she was stopped dead and flames spurted and swept the forecastle.

In a few hours her crew had put out the fire and patched the engines. The destroyer Dewey towed the Jarvis to a shallow water anchorage. A check showed 14 men missing and seven wounded. As Comdr. Graham was putting the seven wounded aboard the flagship MacCawley, he told one of them he would head for Sydney, Australia, for repairs that night—Aug. 8—to avoid the almost certain Jap air attack the next day.

Despite a 50-foot gash in her side, the loss of all her radio gear and many of her guns, it was felt sure the cripple could make Sydney. The mine sweeper Hovey was ordered as escort, but was never able to rendezvous with the Jarvis. With his radio gone, it was assumed Comdr. Graham might not have been informed the Hovey would be his escort and left without it.

A few hours before the Saratoga scout plane saw the Jarvis for the last time, she was spotted by the destroyer Blue. The Jarvis refused aid proffered by the Blue and sailed on.

No successful clue to what happened after that was turned up until this year, when a Navy historian, who had been working on the problem for years, decided to re-examine the log book of a Jap torpedo squadron based on Rabaul.

Battle reports by several Jap pilots for that date made references to an "Achilles-type" cruiser having been "blown to bits" and "sunk instantly." The historian established that the Jarvis, in profile, had a striking resemblance to the small New Zealand cruiser Achilles. With that new information, here is how the unknown final hours of the Jarvis have been pieced together: Before being sighted by the Blue, the Jarvis had been attacked by a Jap destroyer that was part of the big enemy force. She escaped without further damage, which is probably why she didn't ask for help from the Blue. But the Jap destroyer had radioed the Jarvis' position and course to the Rabaul torpedo squadron.

At noon of the ninth, according to the Jap reports, torpedo planes and 16 "Zero" fighters attacked the Jarvis. Sixteen torpedoes were fired at her while the fighters strafed her decks. The final Jap report made no mention of survivors. But the first torpedo the Jarvis had taken at Guadalcanal had blasted away all life rafts and life boats.

An official Navy account now says: "If the Japanese had not elected to throw nearly all of their available planes at the Jarvis they certainly might have done so at Admiral Turner's ships (off Guadalcanal) still frantically unloading troops and precious supplies for the Marines.

"There is also the possibility that, failing to find the Jarvis, the Japanese airmen might have continued their course and attacked our few precious carriers, which had withdrawn to refuel. Thus the Jarvis did not die in vain."

Triplets Arrive On One-A-Day Schedule

JONESVILLE, La., March 11—(AP)—Three days—three babies. That's the way it was for Mrs. Lester Hardie, the 36-year-old wife of a houseboat fisherman.

Mrs. Hardie, already the mother of seven other children, gave birth to triplets at the rate of one child a day for three consecutive days.

"I examined her and knew twins were coming," said Dr. N. G. Nasif who delivered the babies at his clinic here, "but the third child surprised me, and the father was really upset."

He described the three youngsters as healthy and normal.

The first was born at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning—a five-pound boy. The second, a six-pound girl, was born at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. A seven-pound girl born at 12:15 a. m. Yesterday completed the trio.

"I haven't checked into it," said Dr. Nasif, "but it's the first time I've heard of triplets with different birthdays."

The upset father is 35.

Persistent Train Rider Fined $25

ALLIANCE, March 11—A 59-year-old South Carolina man was in jail here today because of his perseverance.

Taken off the rear of a Diesel engine, first at Massillon, next at Canton and finally in Alliance, the man who gave his name as Lovett A. Proctor of Rockhill, S. C., was ready to give up train riding, saying he was almost frozen to death.

In municipal court this morning he was fined $25 and costs and is expected to be committed to the Stark county jail to serve out the penalty.

DEMOTE POSTAL WORKER

CLEVELAND, March 11—(AP)—Arthur A. Forsberg, 53, is working for $1,300 a year less today, postal officials said, for his part in an attempt to influence a juror. Forsberg was superintendent of one of the biggest postal stations in Cleveland, but Washington postal officials demoted him to a clerk with a salary of $3,970. Forsberg was acquitted by a jury on a court charge based on the alleged jury fix attempt.

Hillsboro Offers Its City Hall For Sale

HILLSBORO, March 11—(INS)—Have you ever had a yen to be like the political bosses (in storybooks) and own city hall?

Here's your opportunity. Hillsboro is going to auction off its city hall, but there's a catch. Most of the darn thing burned down a year ago.

Council tried to sell the gutted building for its real estate by sealed bid. Only one bid was received, for $8,500, and it was rejected.

Now the building will be auctioned off Friday, April 14, but council still retains the right to reject any or all bids.

NAPOLÉON, March 11—(AP)—A week ago Charles Barnes, 70, fell asleep with his pipe in his mouth.

Lawrence Babcock, a neighbor, dropped into the two-room house where Barnes lived alone, saw Barnes' coat on fire and awoke him.

Yesterday Barnes fell asleep again with his lighted pipe. This time, however, no neighbor came in.

Barnes' clothing caught fire, and he died today of the burns.

Anyone Have A Blueprint?

THERE has been more straight thinking done about municipal taxation since the Ohio Supreme Court's ruling upholding Toledo's income tax and invalidating a similar tax in Dayton than was done in the preceding 10 years.

The ruling makes it plain that cities which look for new sources of revenue are entering a tangle of legal complications that may trap them, as Dayton has been trapped. It also is a harsh reminder that cities, despite their heavy responsibilities for providing on-the-scene services, are at the mercy of state legislatures in Ohio and other states. That wouldn't be so bad if the legislatures had some kind of a master plan of public income. They don't.

They have been improvising. The federal government has been improvising. Everybody has been improvising, plucking feathers from the tax-paying geese at random, with scant attention to the health of the geese.

Every meeting of tax administrators for years has harped on the urgent necessity of developing a blueprint for taxes, which are a national problem, not something to be worked out on a hit-and-miss basis. In the absence of a blueprint, the federal government, with its seemingly limitless power to draw on the most fruitful sources of public wealth, has been eating at first table and letting the rest of the family fumble for crumbs.

Though it's universally preached that the secret of a healthy society is the strength of local government, the fact is that the federal government piddles away billions of boondoggles, while local government scratches for dollars to keep streets in repair. The federal government can draw off a third of the national income and get credit for generosity if it gives back a few millions, but if local government officials propose a tax levy of a few mills they are pilloried for reckless extravagance. They catch the blame for high taxes but spend most of their time contriving ways and means of persuading the people who collect the high taxes to dole out some of the loot.

The tax structure of the United States "just grew." Some day, unless given the benefit of a little foresight, it may "just collapse."

Find Out How He Does It

AFTER Arthur Krock, dean of the New York Times Washington staff, gained an exclusive interview with President Truman, reporters were hopping mad. They felt they were victims of unfair discrimination. Now Krock has scored again with an exclusive from John L. Lewis, who, aside from his formal statements, seldom has anything for reporters but grunts of "no comment."

Presumably the Washington newspaper fraternity resents this beat almost as much as the earlier one. But before anyone decides Krock ought to be charged with unfair labor practices, perhaps his reporting brethren should try another course.

How about finding out how he does it? His paper has tremendous prestige, to be sure, but is that necessarily the whole story? Maybe Krock just tries harder.

Remaining To Be Proved

BRITAIN'S parliamentary maneuvering is likely to blot out the historic decision that must be made by the House of Commons. That decision has nothing to do with the power hunger of Laborites, Conservatives, or the members of minority parties.

It is whether or not a society which has started to abandon self-reliance for collectivism can turn back the clock. The real question in Britain isn't whether or not nationalization of the iron and steel industry will go into effect on schedule. It is whether or not nationalization of this key industry can be averted in the chain of events which has been leading to Socialism for many years.

The main characteristic of Socialism is its automatic exclusion of everything that isn't socialistic. Thus, nationalization of the British steel and iron industry would not be the beginning of real Socialism but the ultimate consequence of excluding private enterprise.

That is the consequence of creeping collectivism being pointed to with deepest alarm in the United States. It is being demonstrated in the case of agricultural commodities. First, the government assumes responsibility for the purchasing power of farmers. Then it assumes responsibility for the way farmers allocate their land to certain crops. Eventually, it must assume full responsibility for the prices farmers charge for their crops—and at that point farmers as an economic group must lose their independence. They will be at the mercy of the state, which is exactly what Socialists desire.

In the United States no one has a clear idea how to check this drift into statism, much less how to reverse it. That is the gimmick in statism; there is no known way to stop it once it has begun. Perhaps Britain will find a way. That is the historic decision which awaits the outcome of its parliamentary maneuvering.

On The Sidelines

ACQUITTAL of Dr. Hermann N. Sander of charges that he committed an act of homicide against a hopeless cancer patient was a satisfactory verdict in Manchester. And it satisfied the millions who had followed the trial.

It is particularly satisfying because it was reached on a basis which kept "mercy killing" out of the case—and that was as it should be.

Dr. Sander's defense was that he did an irrational thing after his patient's death, and that this unreasoned act, duly recorded in hospital records, became the basis of the murder charge against him. Therefore, unless it could be proved that his patient was still alive when the act was performed, he could not be guilty of the charge. The question of his right to shorten a human life as an act of mercy never was raised. It was not involved in the testimony. The outcome of the trial has no bearing whatever on the question of euthanasia.

The question is in no respect ready for settlement at this time. It must remain on the sidelines, perhaps for generations—or at least until men have learned the right to assume that they are competent to use their power to end life in the name of mercy.

No Marvels, Please

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK SLIP THE rumor to me, Junior. Did you see a bird flying backward? You say a lion stopped you in the street and wanted to know what subway to take to the Bronx zoo?

How's that? You just trapped three men from Mars in the basement and winged 'em with your atom gun? Do I believe you, son? Well, let me put it to you this way—I don't disbelieve you. I no longer disbelieve anybody or anything.

The age of smug certainly is gone. Wonder has piled upon wonder so fast in our lifetime that few of us have any disbelief left. It takes a brave or foolhardy man indeed today to say "that's impossible." Tomorrow he may be proved wrong and a doltish oaf.

Mankind seems to have lost its anchors and is drifting helter-skelter before capricious winds of change and uncertainty. Faith has lost its feathers, and authority is a broken reed. About all a man can be sure of is that if he steps aboard a certain bus he'll end up home. But how about that bus driver a few years back who started out on his regular route here and ended up in Florida?

NOPE, YOU just can't know nothing for certain. There is no basket left you can put your dozen eggs into and count on getting all twelve back again.

Take that story by the dynamite salesman about the wreckage of a space ship being found in Mexico piloted by a gent only 23 inches tall. The Air Force says, "there is no evidence to support the existence of any interplanetary machine."

But you will note that the Air Force doesn't rule out the possibility. It can't—it may have to fight space ships some day. So may the Navy.

As a matter of fact, the rumor of an interplanetary space ship having crashed on the north American continent has been floating around Manhattan for months. According to the version I heard, it hit in the southwest and the bodies of 34 "things" about three-feet high were found. The "things" were supposed to have been living beings, but without skin, flesh, scales or feathers.

A reporter asked a well-known atomic scientist if he believed the rumor, and he replied: "I wouldn't say I disbelieved it. Anything is possible."

And so it is. If two pollywogged creatures in green armor knocked on my door and said, "We just landed from the planet Venus." I wouldn't call them liars. I'd just hand them the keys to the apartment and say, "Let me know when you get out of here."

CAN THE H-BOMB destroy the world? One eminent group of scientists says, "yes." Another says, "pooh!"

Is a murder defendant crazy or sane? One psychiatrist testifies he's a bluebeard and a second psychiatrist says he's batty as a belfry.

Will anti-histamines cure the common cold? There're experts on both sides.

That's the trouble nowadays. The world has gone beyond the understanding of the common man, and whom can he trust when the experts quarrel among themselves?

So, Junior, I won't deny you saw the backward-flying bird, the lion on the street, or shot the three men from Mars. I won't disbelieve anything. But just don't ask me to get excited about your marvels. The old man is worn out with marvels he can't comprehend. It might be a good idea to have a five-year moratorium on them till we can all catch up.

"Free Confessions" Behind the Iron Curtain...

Navy Secretary In Hot Water

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON THE HOUSE armed services committee has quite a problem now in determining how to protect its witnesses from punishment for giving testimony. The federal criminal statutes forbid it, and ten members of the committee have united in a request that the department consider prosecution of the secretary of the navy for having removed Admiral Denfeld as a "reprisal" for testimony he gave last October at the invitation of the committee.

The most important piece of evidence which hitherto has not been made public concerns a document filed with the house committee just before it issued its statement pronouncing the removal to be an act of reprisal. This document was transmitted to the senate armed services committee on Feb. 9, with the request that it be made available to the house armed services committee. From members of the house committee comes the information that the document corroborates the view taken by the ten members who believe the federal law may have been broken. The document comprises testimony sent by Admiral Denfeld to the senate committee in reply to statements made by Secretary Matthews on Jan. 30 before that committee.

David Lawrence, a "reprisal" for testimony he gave last October at the invitation of the committee.

"I have been in the naval service for 40 years. I could testify only to that which, in my honest judgment, appeared to be the facts relating to an efficient and effective navy. Under the unification law, the chief of naval operations, along with the other members of the joint chiefs of staff, is specifically charged with the duty of giving military advice to the secretary of the navy, or to the secretary of defense, or to the President of the United States. I would have been derelict in my duty in testifying before a congressional committee had I altered my convictions to suit the expediencies of the moment."

"There are in the record which you sent me many contradictions and inaccurate observations, revealing, I regret to say, the unfamiliarity of the secretary of the navy with the simplest procedures of the office of the chief of naval operations. . . .

"But all these minor circumstances have been magnified out of all proportion with the result that the real point in this case is belittled, namely, that I was punished for having expressed my honest convictions before a committee of the congress of the United States."

"Stripping this question of all extraneous matter and circumstances, the issue still remains: 'Was I or was I not removed from office for my testimony before the house armed services committee?' Knowing intimately as I do the circumstances surrounding this sequence of events, I am willing to testify before your committee under oath that I was never given any intimation by the secretary of the navy or by anyone else that my services as chief of naval operations would be terminated, until the day an announcement to that effect was made in the press, namely, Oct. 27. On the contrary, when through no culpability of any one in my office, the Bogan letter discussing unification policies was released for publication, the secretary of the navy told me that, much as he regretted the incident, he had weathered worse storms than this before and that he and I working together would weather this one. This, I may point out, was on Oct. 4 and prior to my testimony of Oct. 13."

"My career as an active naval officer is ended. What happens to me is of no great significance, but the decision on the two fundamental issues raised by my removal is vital to the security of the United States. These issues are whether the views I expressed before the house armed services committee on national security are sound, and second, whether or not an officer in the armed services can testify to the truth as he sees it without fear of reprisal."

Anyway the British can have the jet-propelled car . . . what we need is a jet-propelled pedestrian.

It's getting so that while you're waiting for the light to change three bookies will quote odds that you don't make it . . . and three drivers will cover the bet.

I don't think it's really true that in Los Angeles the cars go up on the sidewalks after pedestrians they miss at crosswalks but in New York there are people who won't go anywhere they can't reach by tunnel.

To bring a jet-propelled car into this situation would be like offering a mouse an improved trap.

But I will say that if the House liked the RFC would finance it.

Oilman Kerr

By PETER EDSON

Answers Charges He's Priming Own Pump

WASHINGTON SEN. ROBERT S. KERR of Oklahoma, whose controversial amendments to the Natural Gas Act of 1938 are scheduled for early Senate vote, says that two statements about his personal business affairs, as recently reported in this column, are incorrect.

1. Senator Kerr jokes about the allegation that he is the richest senator. He says he wishes that it were so. But he doesn't want to say what senator might be richer.

2. Senator Kerr denies the report of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, quoted several days ago, that "The Kerr bill is certain to increase the price of natural gas by more than five cents per thousand cubic feet (wholesale), and this increase assures Kerr of at least $50,000,000 in profits before taxes."

This calculation was based on a valuation of $100,000,000 for the 900,000,000 cubic feet estimated reserves in the Kerr-McGee Industries, Inc., fields. Senator Kerr is president of this company.

He explains that all the gas reserves referred to are, and for years have been, under long-term sales contract. Some of these contracts run for 10 years. But in most instances they run for the life of the fields.

THE SENATOR SAYS his sales now average four and one-half cents per thousand cubic feet of gas. The price advances one-half cent per thousand cubic feet to an average maximum of six cents per thousand.

On that basis, the $50,000,000 statement of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers with reference to Kerr's personal interest and potential gains is obviously wrong.

It is pointed out, however, that these contracts would not cover new gas fields brought into production. And contracts to buy the gas produced in these new fields could of course be made at increased prices if there were no Federal Power Commission or other regulation of the rapidly expanding natural gas industry.

This raises again the argument of many of Senator Kerr's opponents. It is that as a gas producer, he has a personal business interest in passage of his proposed amendments.

Senator Kerr states that what he is fighting for is the preservation of the right of an independent producer — operating "at arm's length" from a pipeline or distributing company—to make a contract for the sale of gas from his wells, without regulation.

What the senator is opposed to is giving the Federal Power Commission the authority to make the independent gas producer take less than he can get in a free, competitive market. He is further opposed to regulation that would make the gas producer a public utility and limit him to a return of six and one-half per cent on his investment.

WHILE MOST OTHER businesses would be content if they could get such profits, Senator Kerr says oil and gas men can't afford to work for that profit because of the dry holes that they drill. He says the producers would not be allowed to deduct the costs of these dry holes as business expenses.

In this connection, it should be recalled that President Truman and Secretary of Treasury John Snyder has recommended to Congress the closing of a tax law loophole which permits oil and gas drillers and mining companies to charge off excessive depletion allowances.

In pushing for his amendments to the Natural Gas Act, Senator Kerr maintains he is merely seeking to put into law what is now Federal Power Commission practice. Under this practice, only interstate pipelines and distributors of natural gas are subject to FPC regulation. Independent producers are not.

Senator Kerr says he wants to nail down that exemption, so as to protect the existing contracts under which 60 per cent of all U. S. natural gas is now produced.

National Institute of Law Officers claims that if the Kerr amendments become law, "the total increase in dollars paid by consumers will amount to more than $200,000,000 a year on a nationwide basis." This Senator Kerr disputes.

In earlier columns on the Kerr amendments to the Natural Gas Act, it was incorrectly stated that Federal Power Commissioner Harrington Wimberly had been Kerr's campaign manager, when he ran for the Senate in 1948. An apology is due Commissioner Wimberly. He was Democratic state chairman of Oklahoma in 1944, before coming to Washington.

Security — At What Price?

MAN'S QUEST for economic security will always be one of the strongest human motivations. Throughout all history there has been only one sustained, sought-after goal to emerge paramount over security in the minds and hearts of men—and that goal is, of course, freedom. Because of the fundamental craving for security in the nature of man, there has always been the danger he would forfeit even freedom to attain it. Time and again he has—but usually involuntarily.

Political masters have built their totalitarian governments on the promise of providing security without destroying individual freedom. The bait is well nigh irresistible. And now the problem of having economic security and freedom too has begun to plague acutely the citizenry and the intellectual leadership of America. This dilemma may be traced directly to the Communist and Socialist propagandists.

In this vital postwar period when guards have been dropped, these propagandists and their dupes have sought to convince us that elsewhere the Socialist State is fulfilling its promises of "full employment," "fair shares" and "lifetime security" in a "democracy" where freedom reigns.

The actual facts shout down this siren song. They nevertheless are trying to lure our people away from a healthy confidence in the American way of life or stampede us into politically-operated programs that would bankrupt our nation and lay us wide open for government based on the principal of force.

We've rejected the Socialist doctrine when labeled as such. But a lot of our people have fallen for a security-plus-freedom program being offered in Congress by planners who get angry when called Socialist or when any objective analysis reveals the facts about their plans. I've just read such an objective analysis made by the Brookings Institution. It is entitled "The Cost and Financing of Social Security."

Its purpose is simply to examine the facts and figures. The Brookings Institution study develops the following primary fact: The major social programs being pushed in Congress by the Planners would cost an estimated $30,770,000,000 a year by 1960, and $44,000,000,000 a year by 1990. Add veterans' benefits of from $5 to $10 billion and the soaring regular budget outlays of $40-$50-$60 billions, and you have a total running up toward $50 per cent of the present national income—or a cost to all of us equal to about half of all of our incomes.

The Brookings report says these tremendous sums for security programs ultimately would have to come annually from new taxation, regardless of the monthly payroll taxes. The proof of this was given in a Senate speech by Sen. John L. McClellan (D., Ark.). He revealed that $38,250,000,000 belonging to the present Old Age, Unemployment, Railroad Retirement, and other such trust funds financed by direct payroll tax, had been dissipated by the government on a hundred and one other spending projects.

Benefits from these funds will now have to be financed again, by additional taxes on the general public. Everybody's pay check will be hit. Here we have a striking example of what happens to trust funds sent into Washington in the form of payroll taxes for pensions, benefits, etc. Although the fundamental human desire for security cannot be denied, we must approach the problem with calmness, unhurried by pressure of politico-planners. Above all, it must be taken outside the reach of politics.

Long range economic security can never come by grant of a political boss or clique. The soundest way to obtain it is through individual thrift and by teamwork of workers and employers that will increase productivity and thus boost real wages. Contributory retirement plans help to ease the anxiety and preserve pride and independence. I strongly favor group insurance, pensions, and medical insurance. A voluntary, contributory basis, however, will prove far better for all concerned than a compulsory, government managed plan. More on this next week.

Hospital Auxiliary Launches Program For 1950 At Meeting

"GOD'S BEST GIFT is not things, but opportunity" was the thought expressed by Mrs. Carl Willman Thursday in launching the year's program of the Salem City Hospital Auxiliary.

The auxiliary is availing itself of the opportunity this year to manage the much-needed redecoration of the Nurses Home.

Chancel Choir Has Dinner, Sees Movie

A feature-length movie occupied members of the Presbyterian Chancel Choir Friday evening while their mothers as members of the choir guild elected officers.

The party began with dinner for 85 youngsters and adults in the chapel. Nests of Easter eggs marked each place at the table. Mrs. Joseph Greenwood and her committee arranged the beautifully decorated table where the green and yellow of spring predominated.

Miss Sally Risbeck, choir president, thanked the guild for the party after the welcome by Mrs. Ray Stiver, director. Mrs. Howard Schaefer is organist.

Mrs. John Townsend will be succeeded as guild president by Mrs. Raymond Reich. Mrs. Robert Baughman is secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Amil Cosma is social chairman, who, with her committee will assist with choir and guild activities.

Plans were made to change the choir year to start in September rather than February to go along with the age change of the youngsters. The annual picnic was set for June.

The choir, which will sing Sunday, March 19, practices each Thursday at 4 p. m. in the church. Ramon Pearson is vice president and program chairman. Beverly Presco is secretary-treasurer and Marilyn Schaefer is librarian.

The movie shown by Bill Weber was "Texas to Bataan." Rev. Harold L. Ogden was a guest.

Pork and Beans Are Plentiful

DRIED beans and pork products are both on the plentiful list. So try this kidney bean and salt pork recipe for a hefty noonday meal.

Kidney Beans With Salt Pork Two cans kidney beans, 4 tablespoons catsup, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 3 drops tabasco sauce, optional, 1/2 pound salt pork.

Combine all ingredients except salt pork. Pour into greased casserole and cover with thin strips of salt pork or bacon squares. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. (Another method of making this dish is to lightly fry diced salt pork and combine with the beans before pouring into the casserole.)

Now and then salt pork begs for a chance to star on its own. And star it can—for a country style dinner of fried salt pork and gravy with mashed potatoes, hominy or rice makes the best of eating.

Here's another hefty novelty for the blustery weather luncheon:

Canadian Cheese Soup

(6 servings)

One-half green pepper, minced, 1/4 cup minced carrot, 2 tablespoons minced celery, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 cup chicken broth.

It's Going to Happen Friday! McCulloch's will present their spring style show with living models Friday, March 17, at 8 p. m. in the store—You are invited.

Salem Youth Making Tour With Boychoir

Letters received by relatives from Tom Burns in the last few weeks have told an exciting story of the singing engagements and travels of the Columbus Boychoir.

Miss Marilyn Burns, his sister, and Mrs. Myrtle Brogan of Woodland ave. have been receiving many, but short, accounts of the trip of the 30-voice Boychoir which has been touring the Eastern states in recent weeks and is now in Canada.

The boys, three teachers, and two other adults are traveling in a special bus which has desks so the boys can study enroute to their next concert. Their grades are higher than average although they present dozens of programs during the tour.

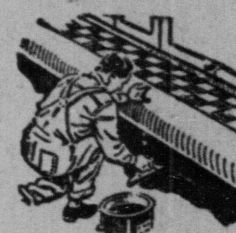

Tom, who was 11 years of age in December, has been attending the Columbus Boychoir School since September. All boys on this tour are between the ages of 10 and 14. Tom writes of the many friendships he has made with boys from all over the country.

Easter Petals In Headlines

Big Picture

Bonnet

Medium Picture

Fragile as a flower and just as pretty are the airy Easter bonnets for 1950.

Petal shapes, borrowed from roses, dahlias, chrysanthemums, field flowers and leaves, blossom on hats of every design from the bicorne to the face-framing picture hat.

Designer Braagaard, for example, takes two stylized leaf patterns in natural leghorn straw and overlaps them at the tips to form the gently curling brim line for a bicorne. Black velvet ribbon outlines the brim and circles the crown to tie in a flat bow at the side.

Chrysanthemum petals in stiffened white cotton organdie curl around the face in Braagaard's profile cloche, which covers the right ear and leaves the left exposed. The petals are stitched to a white braid straw crown which hugs the head.

Layer upon layer of pale pink silk rose petals are used by designer Walter Florell to make a fluffy, medium-sized picture hat with a forward-pitched brimline. Two roses of a slightly deeper pink, tied with dark green velvet ribbon, are poised on the top side of the brim.

Bright petals of colorful red poppies, buttercups and mimosa wave atop a lacy straw bonnet designed by Sally Victor. The flowers, massed at the front of the turned-up brim, are tied with green velvet ribbon.

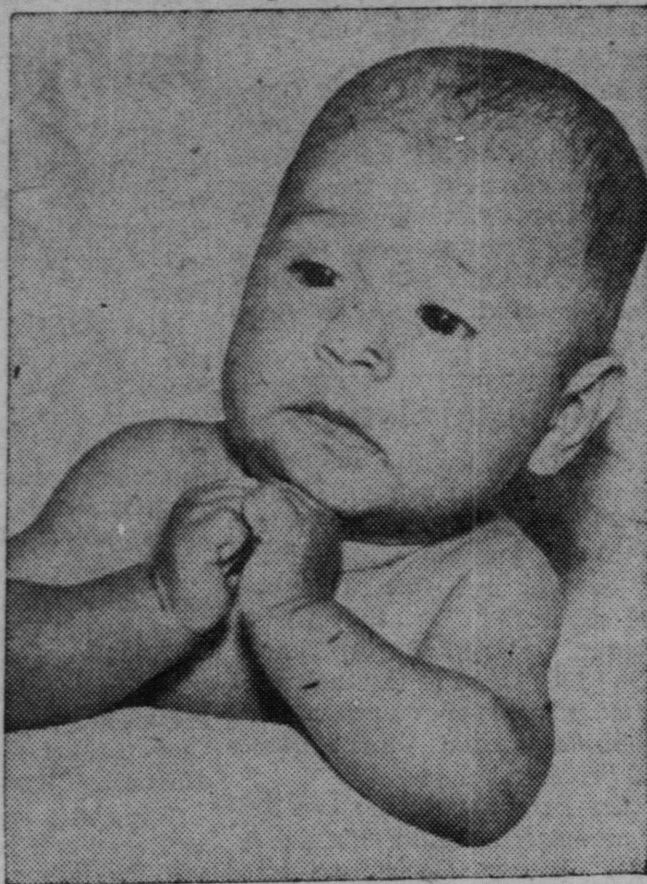

Curling dahlia petals of pink organdie form the flattering face-framing brim of a big picture hat designed by John-Fredericks. This confection has a pink horsehair crown.

Mrs. Eva Fowler and son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold DeWalt, of East Liverpool were Sunday guests of the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grimm. Jacob Hager of Beloit has been dismissed from Alliance City Hospital.

The monthly meeting of the Sebring Nazarene Missionary Society will be this evening at the church. The Junior Society has charge of the meeting.

Tom DeVaul, of Beloit R. D. 1, was admitted to Alliance City Hospital Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles Grimm, who has been ill for sometime, is reported slowly improving.

Heavy Action Slated For Bowling Tourney

Heavy play will be seen today and Sunday in the Salem Bowling Association bowling tournament at the Salem Bowling Center. Action will include only the doubles and singles event, with over 250 bowlers taking part.

Each man will bowl his singles series immediately following his doubles set, thus rolling six games across 12 alleys. Both events, like the five man competition last Sunday, are handicap affairs.

Trophies and cash prizes await the winners of each event.

Max Quackenbush, rookie defenseman for Indianapolis in the American Hockey League is a brother of the talented Bill of Detroit in the National loop.

Training Camp Briefs

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 11—(AP)—With more than enough outfielders and infielders, Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees wouldn't mind trading some of his excess talent for a reliable pitcher.

"I still could use another solid pitcher," said Stengel. "And, if I had the kind of teams that some of the others have, I think I'd be picking up the phone and calling St. Pete right soon. We're still ready to make a deal."

SARASOTA, Fla., March 11—(AP)—Two young men hopeful of sticking with the "varsity" for the season, and one reliable of other years will pitch for Boston's Red Sox today when the exhibition baseball game. Joe Dobson will start for the Bostonians and will be followed by Gordie Mueller and Charlie Schanz.

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 11—(AP)—A flock of ailments plagued the Brooklyn Dodgers today, but Pitcher Ralph Branca's American League runners-up will play the Cincinnati Reds in an philosophical viewpoint brought a laugh from his teammates.

"We must be way ahead of the Yankees in injuries and sickness this year. We ought to be a cinch for the series," was Ralph's crack.

Three more Dodgers were shelved yesterday. Bobby Morgan, Carl Furillo and Erv Palica all fell victims to fever or flu.

Gorgeous Gussie Shocks Egypt

Black Panties Throw Cairo Press In Tizzy

CAIRO, Egypt, March 11—(AP)—Gertrude "Gorgeous Gussie" Moran's panties drew front-page editorial blasts in Cairo's newspapers today—this time because of their color.

Gussie wore black shorts—not regulation white—when she and Mrs. Pat Todd won ladies doubles in the International tennis tournament yesterday.

The audience included Egypt's beautiful Princess Faiza, who presented the cup to the winners.

The Egyptian newspaper Le Progress called the black shorts "shocking" and said: "Miss Moran has proved to have very doubtful taste. We shall leave this young player to the final judgment of posterity."

The British-owned Egyptian Gazette used typical restraint in declaring that the California tennis star "caused a mild sensation." The Gazette said the rules "emphatically state that white should be worn."

The Journal De Egypte, cocking an editorial eyebrow, merely said: "Gorgeous Gussie won the crowd's attention with her good game—and her black shorts."

Gussie, who crashed front pages last summer when she sported lace panties before a staid Wimbledon crowd, was a little bewildered by it all.

"I'm just a nice girl who plays tennis," she said a little plaintively. "Everything I do seems to get in the papers."

In January she made headlines when she became engaged, then broke off a lightning romance with British Businessman Anthony Davenport in Calcutta, while playing in the Indian tournaments.

Gussie said she wore her black practice shorts because she had only one clean white costume left and she wanted to save it for the women's singles finals today.

"No one complained before or during the match," she pleaded, "and now all this bursts loose."

Some who saw the match agreed that the black shorts were neither particularly short nor revealing. It was the color which upset Cairo.

Gussie and Mrs. Todd took the doubles cup after beating Barbara Scofield, of the United States, and Mrs. Mary Weiss of Argentina.

America's seventh ranking woman amateur has won her last three tournaments and plays Mrs. Weiss for the Egyptian singles championship today.

In conventional white, presumably.

Hot-Shot Rookies Must Come Through Now Or Go Home

TAMPA, Fla., March 11—(AP)—Now is the time for the 1950 rookie crop to put up or shut up. The major league 363-game exhibition schedule opens today and there will be no more fooling around.

The new phenoms who can run like Citation and hit like Ruth must prove it under actual game conditions. For many, the end is in sight.

With only 10 or less days of practice, depending on local weather conditions, the boys

Boudreau Says Tribe Shoots Only For Top

TUCSON, Ariz., March 11—(AP)—One sentence by Manager Lou Boudreau today told how the Cleveland Indians plan to play in 1950.

"Any team I'm on shoots to win," the manager-shortstop declared. That the Tribe's policy for this year.

"There is no use setting your sights on second or third place, Boudreau went on. 'It's all or nothing. We are out to win the pennant, and nothing less. We are convinced we can do it.'"

It's true that the Indians slipped from the world's championship in 1948 to third place in the American League last year.

It is also true that the same faces are back in the line-up this spring and the same players will be carrying the heavy burden.

But Boudreau thinks the team differs mentally and physically from the squad that started the 1949 season.

TUCSON, Ariz., March 11—(AP)—Southpaw Gene Bearden will start for the Cleveland Indians today against the New York Giants in the Tribe's opening spring training exhibition contest.

And, instead of the customary three innings, Gene may work four or five, if he is able, Manager Lou Boudreau said. Lou said the Indians' pitching staff is "in excellent condition" and he sees no reason to hold to the three-inning limit.

San Francisco Will Open NIT Tournament

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—Defending champion San Francisco, the Cinderella team of last year, opened its uphill battle for another National Invitation basketball tournament title this afternoon.

The Dons were unseeded again and only even money in their game against City College of New York. But Coach Pete Newell insisted before game time that his boys were a good bet to win the glass slipper for the second straight year.

San Francisco (19-6) met CCNY (17-5) in the second game of an afternoon doubleheader.

In the 2 p. m. (EST) opener, Western Kentucky (24-5) played underdog Niagara (20-6).

LaSalle (20-3) is a 12-point favorite over Arizona (26-4), in one game tonight. In the other, Long Island (20-4) is seven over Syracuse (17-8).

McKinley Tries To Retain Swim Laurels

COLUMBUS, March 11—(AP)—Canton McKinley's state high school swimming champions had a tough job on their hands today as they sought to repeat in the annual scholastic meet at Ohio State University's natatorium.

The Bulldogs qualified three men in individual events, and a pair of relay teams, in yesterday's preliminaries — but Cincinnati Walnut Hills stole the show. The Queen City splashes qualified a half-dozen individuals and two relay teams, and had the best times in both relays and two of the individual races.

The meet shaped up as a three-way fight between McKinley, Walnut Hills and Fremont Ross. Preliminaries were held yesterday in six individual events and two relays.

Detroit is the only team in the major league leagues which has never finished last.

must start playing games. Under baseball law they couldn't begin practice before March 1.

All 16 majors are busy today in a full program that stretches from Miami, Fla., to Pasadena, Calif. There won't be a letup until the season opens in mid-April.

The longest inter-league series will be staged by the Indians and Giants, perennial spring rivals. They play at Tucson today, Phoenix tomorrow and so on in an 18-game schedule. Two final pre-season dates at Cleveland's municipal stadium will end the extended tour.

More often than not, the Cardinal-Yank battle in the Grapefruit league turns out to be a preview of the World Series. Last year the Yanks made it but the Cards missed on the last day. All of the St. Louis-New York games will be played at St. Pete's Al Lang field.

The persistent Brooklyn club, still hoping to atone for last year's series disappointments, gets a chance in six games with the Yanks. Three will be played at Miami. The others are set for Ebbets Field and Yankee Stadium just before the opener.

Two new managers will direct their clubs for the first time — Bucky Harris of Washington and Luke Sewell of Cincinnati. Each figures to have plenty of headaches with second division clubs.

Salem, N. Waterford Reach Tourney Final

Salem "A" and New Waterford Junior High teams won their semi-final games Friday night in the Salem Junior High basketball tournament and were slated to tangle at 3 p. m. today in the finals at the Memorial building.

Salem had an easy time in stopping Chester 33-19, while New Waterford, emphasizing hot foul shooting, took Lisbon 39-22.

The little Quakers were paced by Ronnie Llewellyn, who meshed 12 points, and Sandy Hansell, who collected 10.

Mercure of New Waterford set a tourney high scoring mark, with 20 points. His team cashed in on 17 free throws, caging their first 12 in a row.

The Lisbon-Chester consolation game will be held at 2 today.

Industrial Show Set For Youngstown Area

The second annual Industrial Exposition of the Mahoning and Shenango valleys will be held all next week at the Stambaugh auditorium in Youngstown.

The exposition, like the 1949 show, is intended primarily to show young people of Columbiana, Mahoning, Trumbull, and Mercer counties, and their parents, what the valleys offer in the way of jobs and careers. The Junior Chambers of Commerce of communities in the four-county area are sponsoring the exposition, cooperating with the Industrial Information Institute and school authorities.

Mullins Manufacturing Corp. will be exhibited. Title of the are the Salem companies with exhibits at the show.

A scientific "magic" production will be shown by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. Miniature television relay towers will operate on the stage of the auditorium to show how television network programs, or long distance telephone conversations can be transmitted by means of micro-wave radio.

A new movie showing how people earn their living in this area will be exhibited. Title of the film is "The Right Road." It illustrates the many jobs and careers which valley industries offer to young people after they finish school, and how youth can fit into various places in industry and business.

Robert Baughman is the Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce committee chairman who is directing the local Jaycees participation in the exposition.

USO Prof Selected To Replace Rider

COLUMBUS, March 11—(AP)—Ohio's new wildlife chief—succeeding H. A. (Buck) Rider, resigned—will be Dr. Charles A. Danbach, if he can get a leave of absence from Ohio State University.

Thine 38-year-old Dr. Danbach was appointed the $7,200-a-year job yesterday by Natural Resources Director A. W. Marion. Dr. Danbach is associate professor and director of the conservation curriculum of OSU's department of zoology and entomology.

R. KENNETH KERR, publisher of the Lancaster Eagle-Gazette, is elected president of the Ohio Newspaper Publishers Association at its annual convention in Columbus. He also is president of the Ohio Democratic Press Association and immediate past president of the Ohio Select List of Daily Newspapers.

Gubitchev Will Quit U. S. March 20

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP)—Valentin A. Gubitchev, convicted as a Soviet spy, reportedly will accept the U. S. government's offer of release from a 15-year prison term on the condition that he go home to Russia.

The government had told the 33-year-old engineer that he could pick his own penalty for conspiracy and attempted espionage against the United States.

He could get out, and stay out, or he could go to prison for 15 years.

It was reported that Gubitchev plans to leave the United States March 20 aboard the Polish liner Batory—the same ship on which Communist fugitive Gerhart Eisler fled this country as a stow-away last May.

Both the New York Times and The New York Herald Tribune said they had learned of Gubitchev's decision.

The reported sailing date is four days ahead of the deadline set by Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan Thursday when he meted out sentences of 15 years each to Gubitchev and his co-spy, 28-year-old Judith Coplon.

The judge, on recommendation of the Justice Department and the State Department, said the Russian's sentence would be suspended if he made his exit within two weeks—"never to return."

The government has hinted that the offer was made in the hope that it might induce Communist countries to accord similar treatment to Americans involved in court proceedings.

being sent to the electric chair in Ohio tonight.

"At 4:15 p. m. I had a call from the governor of Michigan stating ment were reliable and of excellent persons who issued the statement character. The governor of Michigan further stated that a judge of the Supreme court of that state called him requesting that he contact me.

"While I have carefully studied the record in Mr. McClure's case and am of the belief that the death sentence was justifiably imposed, in face of the developments that occurred this afternoon, I decided for the peace of my conscience that a 60-day reprieve should be granted."

Warden Ralph W. Alvis said McClure sat calmly in the death cell up to the moment the news of his reprieve reached him. The warden quoted the guard who returned McClure to death row that the convicted slayer of Nicola Salupo in a Cleveland grocery holdup was jubilant as he walked away from the shadow of the chair.

McClure, before the reprieve, had ordered and eaten a "last meal" of fried halibut, pigs feet and mustard, collard greens, hot biscuits, buttermilk, French apple pie and a soft drink.

Tests Open For Census Takers Of Salem Area

Examinations for prospective census takers in the Salem area will be conducted at 10 a. m. Monday in the Memorial building, under the supervision of Mrs. Florence Dennis of Jewett. Mrs. Dennis is in charge of the census for the 18th Ohio congressional district.

The Lisbon area test will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in Court Room 2 of the county courthouse. Fifty-four applicants took a similar aptitude test Thursday afternoon in East Liverpool, where 33 enumerators will be appointed.

Mrs. Dennis said successful applicants will be notified from the district office at Steubenville about a week after the tests.

Ministers Aid Dean Who Bucked Draft

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—Larry Gara, 27, former Bluffton, O., college dean convicted of counseling a student to refuse to register for the draft, won support for his appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from the Ohio Pastors' convention yesterday.

Some 2,000 Ohio Protestant pastors gave their support at the Ohio Pastors' convention in Columbus last month. In accordance with the convention's wishes, Sheldon D. Clark, Cleveland attorney, filed a brief for the organization with the court.

Gara's conviction was upheld at Cincinnati last January by the U. S. circuit court.

Gara, 27, was paroled last Dec. 6 after serving six months in a federal correction institution at Milan, Mich. The imprisonment followed his conviction last March 14 by the federal district court at Toledo in a charge of interfering with the peacetime Selective Service.
